This is in complete contrast with the previous position taken by the Greek Governthat Britain alone must take the initiative.

Archbishop Makarios applied to go to Ankara and discuss the dispute but whether this was a propaganda move or not it seems to indicate a shift in position that he would not take part in talks if the Turkish Government was represented.

Inside the island the reaction has been one of demonstrution and violence. A week ago extreme right-wing Cypriot elements assassinated left - wing leaders with the apparent of climinating opto the original for union with Greece.

Law-Abiding

TITHERTO the Cypriot Turkish community had been a law-abiding society, and the demonstrations of the past week have not aided their cause. Fortunately, though, the saner and wiser leaders have managed to control the unruly factions.

But while this violence is to be deplored what transpires in Ankara is more important and it remains to be seen whether the Turks will agree to a change in approach from one of immediate partition to one of partition as an option at the end of a period of transition under the British Crown.

While it must be admitted that Britain's defence needs have influenced a change in attitude the fact nevertheless remains that she has come a long way from the days of the "never, never" policy.

LLOYD TO BE REPLACED?

, London, Jan. 30. Mr Selwyn Lloyd is "likely to cease to be Foreign Secretary" after the return of Mr Harold Macmillan from his Commonweelth tour - on February 14, the Daily. Mirror reports today.

The newspaper's correspondent writes that "a Foreign Office switch will come as no surprise to Conservative Members of Parliament who have been quietly agtiating for a change for some months."

The correspondent says that Mr R. A. Butler, Lord Privy Seal and Home Secretary, and Mr Alan Lennox-Boyd, Colonial Secretary, are being named as possible successors.

The report is confined to this newspaper and political quarters point out that Mr Lloyd's departure from office has been forecast previously on a number of occasions.-China Mail Special.

MISSILES OVER PACIFIC

IRBM TESTING LINDA AND HER COUNT YEARS

Washington, Jan. 29. The Defence Department announced tonight that a huge new missile testing centre will be established on the California coast to fire intercontinental rockets out over the Pacific. Headquarters for the range will be at the Navy's present missile testing centre at Point Mugu, California, about 35 miles northwest of Los Angeles. About 14,000 men will be assigned to the base when all facilities are completed

The Defence Department emphasised that the Pacific range would "compliment" and not replace the Cape Canaveral testing centre at Patrick Air Force Base,

"For ballistic missiles the Pacific range will support training operations while Canaveral will continue to specialise in research and development support," the Department said.

Over the next few years, the panded to handle operations on both conventional guided missiles and intermediate and longrange ballistic missiles.

in about five years.

The Navy will continue to manage the base but all three branches of the Services will train crews there.

Includes

The new range will include the present Point Mugu installation and an additional 19,000 acres in the southern part of Cooke Air Force Base, Lompoc, California. The two locations are about 80 miles apart.

Long-range missiles will be able to soar at least 5,000 miles cut over the Pacific from launching pads at both Cooke and Point Mugu. For maritime and aviation chart purposes, the range will be listed as extending 500 miles down the California coastline and 250 miles seaward from the test

Victims' Fast Action Foils Two New York Thugs

New York, Jan. 29. Fast action by holdup victims and detectives resulted today in the capture of two gunmen from Bermuda who held up a finance company office in midtown Manhattan;

The gunmen were identified 28-year-old Robert Leroy Green, who said he was a caddy from Bermuda, and 27-year-old Llewellyn Talbot, h truck driver, who also said he comes from Bermude.

Police identified, Talbot as the man involved in an earlier holdup of the same office. The gunmen were captured after a short chase along 59th Street and Third Avenue.

The bandits entered the second floor office of the Household Finance Corporation at 735 Lexington Avenue, near 50th Street, and herded the 15 employees into a small interview room.

SMALL HAUL

While one of the gunmen held the employees at bay with Fijian chiefs are preparing what later proved to be a loy pistol, the other donned a pair of gloves and took $338 from the till. They also inspected the safe, but finding it empty, took wallets each containing $8 from two of the women. Meanwhile, one of the employees, Patricia Hessler, 18. scribbed a note, slipped it over a can opener with a rubber band, and threw it out of window, unnoticed by bandits.

A pedestrian picked up the note, called for help, and received a prompt answer from detectives James Magowan and Thomas Oliver of the Pickpocket Squad who were just meroes the street. The detectives spotted Talbot and Green racing from the building and caught them after firing a warning shot into the air.

The detectives recovered a pistol which one of the bandits threw into a wastebasket as he simport. run, and also the toy pistol used; in the robbery, as well as the stolen cash.

Fijian Chiefs Prepare An Welcome

Suva, Fiji, Jan. 29. elaborate welcoming rites for Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mother's visit to the Islands on Friday.

The principal ceremony will be carried out by women in accordance with Fijian custom. Because the Queen Mether is arriving by air, the old ceremony of "swimming to the ship" will be symbolised by the placing of a cance beside a dais on which she will sit.

The women will approach the dais in two lines, and place a whale's tooth on the canoe, and splash it with water. Then the men will take over

TO one has ever bothered IN to give names to the streots, such as they are, in the small village of But-(charming: no mod. cons.) which is known simply as No. 56.

The approach is muddy talk of a Commonwealth tour and the house itself devoid of plumbing. The water comes from a well in the garden. The interior decor -that is to say, the whitewashing of the walls --- was done by Mr Bolt and his wife, Jo.

Two children

The Bolts have a great many records which they play at the houses of friends because they have never been able to afford a accord player of their own. They were married 91/2 years ago and now have two children, Sally (812) and Benedict (51/2) and a third is expected in April. They are happy and do not feel that being without a television set puts them into the class of the under-privileged. Mr Bolt is a teacher of English Literature; his wife is also a teacher who paints in her spare time.

But their rustic idyll has now been dramatically shattered. For Mr Bolt, in his spare time. wrote a plny, Flowering Cherry, which has brought promising new playwright of employed a professional de-1957 from the Evening Stanincome which is now close on puty sheriffs called on her. They went out to her small rented beach house near Los Angeles in response to a call from an official of a telephone company who complained that she had used foul and abusive language for two hours over the telephone. The deputies drove up, knocked on the door. It was opened a few inches by Miss Churchill.

"What the hell do you want?" She is said to have asked. The deputies say they convinced her they only wanted to talk to her and she let them into the house. They began to leave when, they say, Miss Churchchill followed them to their car and began to shout "America is no good" and "The United States has had it." It was then they arrested her. When they reached the parking space by Malibu gaol she began to struggle and ripped deputy Barney Miller's uniform Jacket and coat. So the deputies "forcibly restrained her."

Miss Churchill was formerly married to London Society photographer Antony Beauchamp. He was found dead last August following an overdose of drugs.

Top Contenders Named For World Welter Title

New York, Jan. 29. Top contenders for the vacant world welterweight boxing little were named here today by the Championship Committee as Virgil Akins (Micsouri), Isaac Logart (Cuba), and Vince Martinez (New Jerrey).

The announcement said that since Australian George Barnes, one of the migmal six confenders recognised by the committee, had falled to take part in the climinating tournament to determine a new champion, a draw would be held on Monday to decide the final bouts. Other contenders, Gasper Ortega (Mexico) and Gil Tur-(Philadelphia). were eliminated in previous fights.

Mr Julius Helfand, President of the WCC, said, "If any of the three refuses to abide by the draw the committee will designate the remaining two to meet for the little." He said it was hoped to have a new champion not later than March 15, or "within reasonable time thereafter. The title was vacated by Carmen Basilio last October. -Reuter.

London.

It's a popular adage among generals and sportsmen that attack is the best form of defence. True in many battles, and in many sports. But not in the most belligerent game of Rugby Union football.

Under the present laws, which enable forwards to dominate the play, we find time and time again that defence is the best form of attack. A strong pack, supported by dour defenders, invariably ensures success, however hostile the opposing backs may be.

Scotland, but I consider Davies used in an attacking role. Instead, Wales' little genius, fly-half Cliff Morgan, continually made ground by magnificent kicking to touch.

Ideal Tactics

Ideal tactics against an England side so strong in attack. But what happens when Wales meets a side which is equally dependent on defensive play? We shall have the answer on February 1 when Wales meet Scotland at Cardiff Arms Park. On both sides the strength lies in precisely the same places. Both countries have flery forwards, intelligent half-backs, and an excellent full-back. Both countries .have a threequarter line-up which is far stronger in defence than attack.

In the circumstances it might seem strange that Wales have made no changes in the side which held England to a draw.
But it is a sad fact that, although the Welsh backs are below the standard one expects at international level, there are at international level, there are no obvious contenders to take full-back by Jim Hetherington, their places.

Wales have no one with half the talent of that great centre, Bleddyn Williams, but in Malcolm Thomas, holder of 22 caps to Malcolm Phillips of Oxford University. and who first played for his country nine years ago, they have a most solid "stopper" in their first caps. Hetherington is the middle.

The Welsh selectors have and in the final trial his kicking played safe. Their "no change" was more reliable. Similarly, decision is a vote of confidence Phillips is faster than Davies team which employs and possesses a deceptive body negative methods, but methods swerve. which bring high dividends of the under the present laws of the game.

The decision also gives some indication of the balance of ly given a second change at fly-

If the ground is wet or muddy, I see little hope for Bob Davidson's merry men. BENEFIT

It has been estimated that the canal would carry at least some 50 million tons of cargo annually, of which 15 million would be traffic between the three sponsoring nations, and the rest freight from Russia as well as from non-Communist Continental countries.

The fact that the canal would be of even greater benefit to bordering on the two rivers than to its sponsors—together with the very high and the with ship superstructure. the very high cost of its construction—has given rise to a plan for the formation of an international company to execute the scheme.

Such a company might even be launched as a joint East-West undertaking, either for the construction or for the financing of the scheme.

Transport by waten is used chiefly for heavy bulk traffic such as coal, ore, grain, oil and timber—all commodities which form the chief stock-in-trade of the Communist countries on the Danube and Oder.

Import Quotas Terminated Washington, Jan. 29.

President Eisenhower today terminated quotas on imports of 3414 "short harsh cotton." The cotton, having a staple of less than three-quarters of an inch in length, is used in some blankels, surgical dressing and filling for mattresses.

In 1947 imports of the rough cotton were limited to 70,000,000 pounds a year but the quota was never filled. The tariff commission recommended last December 28, that the limitar tion be removed. Imports lately have been mostly from Pakistan. They formerly came from India.

In a proclamation today, the president said he found that circumstances requiring the import quots no longer exist. United Pross.

REPLACEMENT OF PRESIDENT

Rayburn Withdraws Opposition

Washington, Jan. 29. Speaker Sam Rayburn gave a reluctant go-ahead today for Congress to push ahead. legislation providing for the temporary replacement of any disabled President.

House Judiciary Committee cources said details of the legislation were still to be ironed out. However, Mr Rayburn and other top House leaders agreed in principle on a bill which would: Allow an alling President, who anticipates that he will recover, to step aside temporarily in favour of the Vice-President, who would become acting President.

Create a commission, composed of both Congressional leaders and Cabinet officers, which could make the necessary determination of inability in the event the President is too ill to act for himself, as in cases of mental illness. In these cases, too, the Vice-President would take office: temporarily as acting

President. ADAMANT

Mr Rayburn previously had been adament against such legislation. He held that the existing constitutional provisions -although criticised widely as being vague-probably were as workable as anything Congress was likely to devise.

His reluctant change of position overcame a major obstacle in the way of various proposals for handling the problem.

The question has been pending in Congress for some time but took on added importance with President Eisenhower's recent mild stroke on top of two other major illnesses.—United

Italy Outlaws Prostitution After 10 Years Of Furore

Rome, Jan. 29. Italy outlawed prostitution today after 10 years of hesitation, misgivings and controversy.

Chamber of Deputies the Senate-approved anti-prostitution bill by 385 to 115 in a secret ballot,

The law, closing down 717 licensed brothels which employ about 8,000 girls, will become effective after it is signed by President Giovanni Gronchi and published in the official gazette in a few weeks' time.

SIX MONTHS

The 15-article law provided that all brothels in the country must close within six months of its promulgation in the official gazette.

The act put an end to 98 years of legalised prostitution in Italy. It was in 1860 that Italian law-makers first down the rules governing the world's oldest profession.
